

MML
MOBILE
MEDIA
LAB

The Wireless Spectrum: The Politics, Practices and Poetics of Mobile Media

Editors: Barbara Crow, Michael Longford, Kim Sawchuk
Digital Futures Series | University of Toronto Press – Fall 2009

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Section 1: Spectral Genealogies

The Circulatory Turn, Dr. Will Straw,
Professor, Art History and Communication Studies, McGill University.

Radio Hats, Wireless Rats and Flying Families, Dr. Kim Sawchuk,
Associate Professor, Communication Studies, Concordia University.

Atmospheres of Communication, Dr. Jennifer Gabrys,
Lecturer, Goldsmith College.

Section 2: Mobile Practices

Mobile Publics and Issues-Based Art and Design, Dr. Anne Galloway, Computation Arts & Design, Concordia University.

Third Screen: Cell Phone TV as Cultural Form, Dr. Judith Nicholson,
Assistant Professor, Communication Studies, Wilfrid Laurier University.

Intimate Strangers: The Keitai Culture of “Belonging-without-being-with,”
Dr. Sandra Buckley, Strategic Negotiations.

Terminal City? Art, Information and the Augmenting of Vancouver, Dr. Darin Barney,
Associate Professor, Art History and Communication Studies, McGill University.

Section 3: Locative Media

Labours of Location: Acting in the Pervasive Media Space, Minna Tarkka, m-cult, Centre for New Media Culture, Helsinki.

Spectrum Policy as Art: Interview with Julian Priest, Dr. Barbara Crow
Associate Professor, Faculty of Arts, York University.

Augmented Urbanism: Locative Media Experiences in the Digital City, Kajin Goh, Designer,
Michael Longford, Associate Professor, Department of Design, and Dr. Barbara Crow,
Faculty of Arts, York University.

Section 4: Wireless Connections

The Wireless Commons Manifesto

Community WiFi, Resistance, and Making Infrastructure Visible, Dr. Alison Powell, Post-Doctoral Fellow, Oxford University.

“The Network we all dream of”: Manifest Dreams of Connectivity and Communication or,
Social Imaginaries of the Wireless Commons, Dr. Andrew Herman,
Associate Professor, Communication Studies, Wilfrid Laurier University.